Miss Patricia Bennett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bennett and Mr. George Bernard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Bernard of Moline, Ill., were united in marriage Saturday evening, February 15th at 7 P. M. in the Mokena Methodist Church with Rev. Robert Bieber officiating at a double ring ceremony.

Mrs. Hugo Neithammer, pianist, played a group of love songs preceding the service and accompanied Miss Kay Lambrecht of Frankfort who sang "O Promise Me", "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The church was prettily decorated with palms, ferns and candelabra which were lighted by Miss Lydia Baudry.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, wore a grey suit with pink accessories and a corsage of white carnations and pink sweet peas.

Miss Georgia Bennett, maid-of-honor, and sister of the bride, wore a suit identical of the bride's and had a corsage of yellow carnations and lavender sweet peas.

Miss Lydia Baudry, bridesmaid, and a friend of the bride, wore a light blue suit with a corsage identical to the maid-of-honor.

The best-man was John Johnson of Blue Island, a friend of the groom and Jerry Bennett, brother of the bride and Clark Bennett, cousin of the bride were ushers. All of the men wore white carnation boutonnieres.

Mrs. George Bennett, chose a black gown and accessories for her daughter's wedding and wore a corsage of American Beauty roses.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at St. Mary's hall for over two hundred relatives and friends.

The hall was prettily decorated with pink and white crepe paper streamers which were the chosen colors of the bride. The bridal table was covered with a linen tablecloth and had a three-tiered wedding cake and on either side pink and white candles. After the bride and groom cut the cake Mrs. Wm. Bradley served individual plates to all present.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bernard left that evening for Chicago and left Sunday for Moline to spend a few days with Mr. Bernard's parents before going to Minneapolis, Minn. where they intend to make their future home.

Aug. Hentsch Former Alderman Dies At 83

Mr. August Hentsch, 83, died in his home in Mokena last Friday, February 14 following an illness of five weeks. Mr. Hentsch had been quite a colorful character for many years in this territory.

He was born on a farm in Rich Township July 17, 1863 where he grew to manhood. On October 4, 1891 he was united in marriage with Miss Ernestine Hellmuth and to them were born three children, two sons and one daughter. The daughter and one son preceded their father in death.

In 1904 they moved to Mokena and farmed for several years until in July 1916 when they retired from farming and moved into the village.

Mr. Hentsch served several terms as village alderman and many years as village maintenance man and mail messenger. He gave up that work a few years ago. He was a charter member of the Immanuel Lutheran church. His son Fred and family moved into his home following the death of his wife several years ago, and have lovingly cared for him during his declining years.

Surviving are his son Fred and three grandchildren; two brothers, Charles of Chicago and William of Tinley Park, one sister, Mrs. Augusta Bech of Wisconsin.

Funeral services were held from the Immanuel Lutheran church in Mokena Sunday afternoon with the pastor Rev. A. Gode officiating. Burial was made in St. John cemetery.

NEW LENOX CRUSADE FOR CHILDREN

Again the catastrophe of our recent school election brings to my mind the futility of our actions.

If the proposition as put over by our school board is carried to a conclusion, it will mean, only, enmity between our North and South side and our school children will be the losers. I am reminded of the words spoken by, in my opinion, our greatest American, Abraham Lincoln, who said, "A House Divided Against Itself will not Stand". Should we not pause and reflect upon this great man's wisdom before it is too late? Should we not stop to think of his unselfish devotion to this country, that it might be a better place for you and me? Let us each and everyone try to emulate this great and lovable man and put our petty jealousies and selfishnesses beneath human welfare.

Lincoln knew that the South had some justification in their desire for separation but he foresaw the greater disaster which would result if that separation took place. What would have been the outcome of our past great war had it not been for the immortality of this great man's actions. So my friends, we are faced with a similar situation in our school problem. Divided we shall fail. United we shall stand.

There are no wealthy people in New Lenox and the only legacy we can hope to leave our children is a good education. The opportunity is now at hand. Let us take advantage of it before we make this colossal blunder.

Most of our school board were in their swaddling clothes in the lean years of the thirties when the teachers had not been paid for nine months and we were faced with the same problem, facing the school board today, would two schools have been in times like that? And we have no assurance that those trying days will not return. It seemed like an almost hopeless task to make ends meet for one school at that time. But we did it, thanks to the skillful guidance of our good old friend and school board president, Mr. C. H. M. Smith. Were his name Abraham he could well have deserved the title of "Honest Abe."

Let us look at this school proposition from another angle. I do not think that I am far in error when I make the statement that the New Lenox south side furnishes eighty per cent of the New Lenox school tax. I do not have the exact figures but it was admitted by one of our school directors that the corporations of the town made the largest contribution to our school fund. May I ask you where the Corporations, the Wabash RR., the E&E RR., the NYC RR., the Western Union Telegraph Co., the High Tension line, the Gas Company pipe line and one half of the Rock Island railroad are situated? Also the majority of business establishments of the town. Is it fair for the south side to furnish $112,000 for a new building and $6,000 for the site while the north side furnishes only $28,000 for the building and $1500 for the site based on the eighty per cent figure which I do not believe is far amiss. The south side would gladly do this, I am sure, if their children received the same benefit as the north side's, but with a new school on its present proposed site this would be impossible.

The fallacy of the north side site should it become a consolidated school would make some of the south side children cross four railroad tracks and the majority two and three in order to get to school. And you south side know that the southside tracks are far less protected than the Rock Island tracks which the north side now have to cross. To me there is absolutely no fairness in this proposition.

We of the south side have proven that we are lagards and do border on the term "Trash of the town" as some (Continued on Page Five)

PIONEER HYBRID HAS HIGHEST YIELD IN ILLINOIS OFFICIAL CORN PERFORMANCE TEST

Pioneer Hybrid corn produced the highest yield in the 1946 Illinois Official Corn Performance Test conducted by the University of Illinois. Results were published and released in the University bulletin No. 521 at the Farm and Home Week on January 29, 1947. There were 44 companies competing with a total of 420 entries.

These tests have been carried on for a number of years by the University in order to give the farmers performance data, from an impartial source, on many different varieties of seed corn sold in Illinois.

Past records show that a Pioneer Hybrid produced the highest 5 year average yield and the highest yield ever recorded in the Illinois Official Corn Performance Test.

DEMOCRACY AND CHURCH UNITY

Democratic procedures are native in the two denominations, the "Evangelical and Reformed Church" and the "Congregational Christian Church", which are nearing an organic union. A joint committee has acted unanimously on a "Basis of Union" which has been under consideration for several years. This basis will now be referred to congregations, conferences and synods for a referendum by the people. It is expected that action of these bodies will have been completed by the spring of 1948. The name proposed for this union is "The United Church of Christ". St. John's church in Mokena will be a member of this body if the vote on the referendum is favorable.

Democratic procedures are slow and involved, but they are effective in preserving the integrity and dignity of the individual, which is the meaning of the Constitution of the USA and the Bill of Rights as it is the inalienable tenet of the Christian religion as expounded by its founder and head.

VOTERS APPROVE OF SCHOOL TAX INCREASE AT TINLEY PARK

Seventy four ballots were cast at the school election in Tinley Park last Saturday, 57 yes and 13 no with 4 spoiled ballots, on the question of increasing the maximum tax rate that could be levied for educational purposes, from 90c to $1.12 1/2 cents per $100 valuation.

This is necessary because of certain limitations imposed by the Butler Bill passed in 1945 by the State legislature. This would restrict funds available to the point where there would be only money enough for six months of school.

WORLD DAY OF PRAYER SERVICE

IN ORLAND METHODIST TODAY

Out of the apparent chaotic world conditions, comes a World Day of Prayer. The title itself already has a quieting effect.

The Orland Park Methodist church is putting forth special effort to observe the day. As this Day is Worldwide, interracial, international and interdenominational, an invitation is hereby extended to all women in all communities and churches to attend the service in the Orland church this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The worship program which will be followed has been prepared by a talented woman of India and is the result of modern missions, a third generation of Christians. She is Mrs. Isabel Caley, on the staff of Ewing Christian College at Allahabad.

Quoting Mrs. Caley concerning the program: "I thank you for the confidence you have placed in me by giving me the privilege of writing the Service for 1947. I have enjoyed writing it, and to me personally has come a fresh challenge to pray and to do my part humbly but with all my heart, strength and mind toward the realization of the Christlike World Order. May we feel that upon each of us rests a responsibility so big, so sacred and so beautiful that we dare not refuse it."

And so from India where we Christians have sent missionaries to what make them better than we, by bringing Christianity to them, comes our Christian Service for the World Day of Prayer observance. The topic for the day is: "Make Level in the Desert the Highway of our God."

It really behooves all Christian women to attend this service if you are not having one in your own church. All are welcome.

The cooperation of the local business places in this respect is greatly appreciated by the Committee. Because of public necessity, the garages, taverns and local press will remain open. The public cooperation in giving local employees their half day holiday is greatly appreciated.

THERE ARE THOSE WHO DO NOT AGREE

Dear Mrs. Semmler:

I cannot resist a few words to you in reference to the article you published this past week concerning a perfectly focused picture of Jesus of Nazareth.

This type of article is being spread broadcast over our Country today and is nothing more than a subtle type of Communistic propaganda, intended to plant seeds of doubt and question in the fertile soil of the minds of those easily influenced. "Mr. and Mrs. Milktoasts" that are to be found, in greater or lesser degree, in every community.

Few have ever heard of this George H. Cushing but he surely writes as if he felt himself to be infallible.

In creating his picture he fails to see that in reality he is only taking the "tubercular individual with long silky whiskers" that he accuses the painters of creating, and placing it in a more modern enlarger, which happens to have a falsely ground lens, which turns the subject into a Big Athletic He man creature who happens to be greater and kind and wise as well as humorous. He completely overlooks the fact the two important focuses His Divinity and the Will of God which must permeate every light and shade and angle before any picture could ever hope to even resemble The Christ, are completely left out.

The fact that Dr. Preston Bradley read such an article over his broadcast does not raise him in the estimation of any thinking person, regardless of how much they may have admired his famous Oratory.

I feel sure every God fearing citizen of Mokena would join with me, who claims only to be a humble housewife, to search out these Poison arrows which are coming from so many directions and keep our homes, communities and Our Country true to the God fearing principles upon which our ancestors founded it.

Sincerely,
Florence Zane Demkov

ANOTHER 'FIRST'

Washington's Early Ventures Proved Key to Farm Progress

WNU Features.

Remembered as "First in War, First in Peace, First in the Hearts of His Countrymen," George Washington could lay claim to still another honor. He also was "First in Farming."

As America hails the 215th anniversary of his birth, agriculture acknowledges its debt to him. For Washington made contributions to farming's progress that benefit millions of people today.

The "Father of His Country" was a keen student of farming. He pioneered in soil conservation. He championed crop rotation almost before anyone else in the colonies tried it. He was one of the first to carry on experiments with clover as a soil-building crop. He introduced timothy hay to this country and was one of the first Americans to grow alfalfa.

Ahead of Times.

Three-quarters of a century before the science of soil chemistry was discovered, Washington worked to restore exhausted fields with fertilizer materials then available. He led the way in the use of farm machinery. He experimented successfully in livestock breeding and improvement of blood strains. According to his own account, he was the first American to attempt the raising of mules.

As a result of his success with farming, Washington became the richest man in the United States. When he died in 1799, his property included more than 48,000 acres of farm land. That included Mount Vernon as well as acreage in Ohio and elsewhere. Washington's landed estate was valued at $530,000. Other property included additional buildings, equipment, livestock and various investments worth $220,000.

Washington was 27 when he began his serious farming career in 1759. He had inherited Mount Vernon, married Martha Custis and received a handsome dowry in lands and chattels. For the next 16 years he was to devote himself to the land.

No Aid Available.

That was no easy task, however. The land he inherited was worn out by a century of single-crop farming. There had been no attempt at rotation or fertilization. Unlike the farmer of today, Washington could not turn to his county agent or to the research men at the state agricultural experiment station for facts to help him meet farm needs.

As an alternate to tobacco growing, Washington began giving increasing attention to wheat. His progressive attitude toward crop management showed itself in experiments such as steeping his seed in brine and alum to prevent smut. Washington's wheat growing ventures proved profitable.

Washington's farm career was halted for eight years during the Revolutionary war. Peace in 1783 at last brought his release. When he returned to Mount Vernon he was one of the world's most famous men. Happy to be home again, he threw himself once more into his old occupation.

During his career as commander-in-chief of the Continental army he had observed at firsthand how agriculture was practiced in New York, New Jersey and other northern colonies. That broadened his outlook. He was more than ever convinced of the need for pastures and livestock to help conserve the soil. He was more wide-awake to the need for better tools.

Revives Old Soil.

There was plenty to be done at Mount Vernon. One of Washington's chief worries was the rundown condition of the soil, due to the poor methods followed by overseers during his absence.

Washington began to experiment with clover and other grasses as a soil conservation measure. He was prompted to do this by Noah Webster, newspaper writer, editor and compiler of a dictionary.

In his experiments Washington tried every kind of legume known to Virginia farmers, and imported many other kinds of seed from England. Thus he introduced timothy to his countrymen. He found that clover and peas had a soil enriching power.

In an English journal he read about a new legume—alfalfa or Lucerne—which had been brought from Switzerland. He found that alfalfa, too, could enrich the soil.

Imports New Strains.

Washington found some time to keep an eye on his farming operations at Mount Vernon even during his terms as President from 1789 to 1797. He had extensive experiments conducted in grain and livestock breeding. He imported new strains of wheat from South Africa and Siberia. He sent to England for sheep and, by crossing with Virginia breeds, increased the wool clip by two pounds per sheep. He bred fine draft horses and had the best trotting, riding and field animals in Virginia.

Crop rotation occupied a good deal of his attention. One rotation he noted "favors the land very much; inasmuch as there are but three corn crops (i.e. grain crops) taken in seven years from any field, and the first of the wheat crop which is to succeed it; and which by being laid to clover and grass and continued therein three years will afford much mowing and grassing, besides being a restoration to the soil."

Washington was one of the first Americans to use farm machinery. He was especially alert for better methods of threshing grain than the age-old practice of treading and flailing. In 1797, two years before his death, he built a thresher on plans evolved by William Booker, who came to Mount Vernon and directed construction.

Thresher Fails.

The machine failed to live up to Washington's hopes. At first it threshed about 50 bushels a day, then fell to fewer than 25 and finally broke down completely.

The disappointing experience with the threshing machine did not deter Washington from trying other implements. He furnished his farms with every kind of improved tool that might do better work. Among these were a wheat drill, a corn drill, a machine for gathering clover seed and one for raking up wheat.

"As a farmer, Washington was generations ahead of his time," declares Zenas H. Beers, executive secretary of Middle West Soil Improvement committee. "His progress toward scientific farming set an example that any modern farmer might follow with profit. Washington's success in devising good soil management methods mark him as one of America's first conservationists."

During his Presidency, Washington was eager to improve the lot of agriculture. In his last message to congress he recommended establishment of a "board of agriculture to collect and diffuse information, and by premium and small pecuniary aids, to encourage and assist a spirit of discovery and improvement." That recommendation foreshadowed establishment of the U. S. department of agriculture three-quarters of a century later.

No replies can be made direct by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper regularly.

Eighteen Million Strong

The great army of veterans is growing so that as of December 31, the number of World War I veterans passed the 14,000,000 mark, bringing the total war veteran population to 18,058,000 all under jurisdiction of Veterans administration insofar as administration of veterans' laws is concerned.

VA announced that as of January 20 only one out of every 4,500 G.I. home loans guaranteed by the agency had been in default.

More than 400,000 veterans already have converted their national service life insurance to government 20-pay life, valued at more than 1.7 billion dollars.

Veterans' administration also has 137,000 veterans or dependents of veterans as wards of the administration.

Questions and Answers

Q. I am writing in regard to money for veterans who farm. I understand they were to get $100 a month for nine months if they farmed. I know of several who tried to sign up but couldn't sign because they didn't have any cattle. Does the government expect them to have cattle when they get out of the army after having served for three or four years? This one I have in mind served 4½ years and was always at home on the farm before he enlisted in 1941. If he had a herd of cattle before he left he wouldn't need anything from the government. Lots of boys are farming and receiving this compensation who never farmed before. I am a World War I veteran and want to see the answer.—A. L. J., Artesian, S. D.

A. If you are referring to readjustment allowances for self-employed under the serviceman's readjustment act of 1944, then the following are the provisions:

A veteran of World War II who is self-employed, that is in business for himself, which includes farming, is eligible for readjustment allowances if his net earnings are less than $100 for the previous calendar month, the amount of the allowance being the difference between his net earnings and $100. The veteran should file his claim on the proper forms which will be provided him at the nearest office of the state unemployment compensation agency. He is not required to register as unemployed, however. He must have with him his discharge or separation papers. If the claim is denied, the veteran is entitled to a hearing before an impartial tribunal of the state agency and this decision even may be appealed to the readjustment allowance agent of the nearest office of Veterans' administration.

Q. I stayed in service in Camp Maxey, Tex., eight months. While there I had an allotment made for my two children. They didn't get one penny. I was discharged with an honorable discharge, but they didn't give me a penny of mustering-out pay and I even had to pay my train fare back home from camp. I would like to know if I am entitled to any consideration.—R. O., Memphis, Tenn.

A. With reference to your mustering-out pay, if you received an honorable discharge and were in the army for eight months, you are entitled to $200 mustering-out pay and your train fare home. Suggest you write to the finance officer at Camp Maxey about this and, if you don't get results, then write to the Office of the Adjutant General, War Department, Washington 25, D. C. With reference to the allotment for your two children, if this money was taken out of your pay, then write to the Office of Dependency Benefits, 4300 Goodfellow Blvd., St. Louis 20, Mo., and explain the details to them.

Q. How long are you supposed to wait for your terminal leave pay? It's been more than a month now since I was discharged and am beginning to wonder if I'm going to get that money. And I need it.—O. A. McE., Poplar Bluff, Mo.

A. The armed services estimate that about 60 days will elapse between the date of application and the date the veteran receives his bonds or his check for terminal leave.

Q. I sent in my terminal leave papers about five months ago and have never heard a word from them and I would like to know the reason and how I can find out. All my brothers have received their bonds and money.—W. F. G., Blencoe, Iowa.

A. The finance office is swamped with applications for terminal leave pay and the army is several months behind in processing applications. However, suggest that you write to the finance office to which you mailed your application for terminal leave. You might also contact Red Cross.

MAKE IT YOURSELF

HOOKEK rugs are among the simplest to make yourself. Inexpensive, too! The foundation may be burlap or discarded linen; material for hooking can be salvaged from old clothes and blankets.

Our 40-page booklet gives instructions for making hooked, woven, braided, crocheted and other types of rugs. Send 25 cents (coin) for "New Ideas for Handmade Rugs" to Weekly Newspaper Service, 243 W. 17th St., New York 11, N. Y. Print name, address, booklet title and No. 94.

Rocket Brakes

The jet power of rockets, which has so far been employed almost wholly as a propulsive force, is expected to be used soon in the opposite way—to brake the speed of planes and trains in cases of emergency, says Collier's.

Experts estimate that a train which travels 1,500 feet after the air brakes are applied could be brought to a stop in 375 feet, or one fourth the distance, by the additional braking force of forward-firing rockets installed on the locomotive.

Fence Along Texas-Mexico Line Urged

AUSTIN, TEX.—Erection of a cattleproof fence along the entire border between Texas and Mexico has been recommended by C. H. Cavness, Texas state auditor and efficiency expert.

The fence, which would stretch for 1,207 miles, also would be useful against bootleggers, Cavness points out.

The recommendation came as an aftermath of an incident in which two Mexican bootleggers brought 150 quarts of liquor across the Rio Grande into Texas to sell.

Tick infestation spread over 765,810 acres of southwest Texas ranchland in four counties, resulting in quarantine for 24,950 head of livestock.

The official state report recommended an appropriation to meet such emergencies until the fence is erected.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Liquid can be poured from a narrow-necked bottle faster and easier by shaking the bottle in a circular manner.

Too frequent pressing takes some of the life out of woolen fibres.

Wax the cupboard shelves or cover them with oilcloth. Then dirt and spots wipe off easily.

Some of those pictures hanging on the wall are a sight when you take them down. Heavy wrapping paper glued tightly to the back of the frames will keep out dust and protect pictures.

Gas on Stomach

Relieved in 5 minutes or double your money back. When excess stomach acid causes painful, suffocating gas, sour stomach and heartburn, doctors usually prescribe the fastest-acting medicines known for symptomatic relief—medicines like those in Bell's Gas Tablets. No laxative. Bell's Gas brings comfort in a 5 minute or double your money back on return of bottle to us. 25c at all druggists.

New Lenox Crusade For Children

of our north side neighbors have dubbed us. Let us get out of our state of apathy for the sake of our children if not for ourselves.

I have serious doubts as to the legality of the ballot on which we sold our children's educational birthright. Those who were opposed to the north side site had no vote in the matter. There was no place on the ballot to say "No" and if you didn't vote "yes" you didn't vote.

Several people unwittingly voted for the north-side site when their intention was to oppose it. Why did not the public have the right to vote, yes or no I question the integrity of the author of that ballot. I also question the intelligence and wisdom of our entire school board. I do not question Mr. Oster's ability because he knows on which side his bread is buttered.

For years, including my time at the Joliet Township High School, the children of New Lenox have had a black eye in the opinions of the High School teachers and management. This I have been told by several including some of the top-notchers of the high school. This situation has always humiliated me and the only reasons I can ascribe for it is our perpetual stagnation into which we as citizens have fallen. We have failed to provide playgrounds and adequate recreation for our children, the result being that our children are still in the playing stage when they get to high-school instead of becoming adolescent. And it is our fault, not theirs, yet we are going to continue to deprive our south-side children of the chance to overcome this handicap. If our south-side children continue to be educated under these conditions, will it not reflect on the whole town? The north-side as well as the south? The consolidated school sanely located would eliminate all this.

Our neighbors from Cherry Hill recognize the advantage of consolidation yet they are reticent to go with us because of our inability to make wise decisions. Shall we slumber until they have united with Joliet to improve their school system and further weaken ours? Would not a consolidated school west of the Camp ground benefit them as well as us? Would not a consolidated school bus service to transport their children and ours relieve all of us of worries of our children trudging the highways?

There are of course drawbacks to all locations but would not the site centrally located, equidistant from all corresponding parts of the township be more beneficial to all? The Lincoln Highway would in some degree be a menace, but we still have Haven Avenue free of traffic, were the school located West of New Lenox. Should Haven Avenue become the Lincoln Highway we would still have the original Lincoln Highway relatively free of heavy traffic with the consolidated school easily accessible from all parts of the township. What sane, sensible, unselfish person could object to such fairness?

I do not believe there are any south-siders who deny the fact that our present school building and system is obsolete and that there is not an urgent need for remedial action but I profoundly believe that very, very few with a little thought would sanction the raw deal that has recently been put over on us. I am certain that in years to come, their children wouldn't.

North and South-siders, let's wake up and pull together for the good of all, especially our precious children.

HOWARD R. AYERS.

Listen To Broadcast Of Health Dept.

"From now on until late Spring is the pneumonia season in most parts of the United States, but you can help yourself avoid contracting it by seeing to it that you get enough rest," said Dr. Sharp, Will County Health officer.

"Resistance to pneumonia may be lowered by wet, cold exposure, and apparently under certain conditions by bodily and mental fatigue," Dr. Sharp said. Ordinary pneumonia, which doctors call "pneumococcal acute lobar pneumonia," is caused by a group of germs that doctors usually can knock out by prompt treatment. Less common types of pneumonia caused by various other germs also can be treated effectively. Another form of pneumonia about which not so much is known is believed to be caused by a virus.

The symptoms of pneumonia include sudden chills followed by fever, often pain in the chest, usually cough and difficulty in breathing.

Like the common cold and influenza pneumonia is spread from the discharges from the mouth and nose of an infected person and articles freshly soiled with such discharges.

If you have any pneumonia symptoms call your doctor immediately, do not try to treat yourself, follow your doctor's advice carefully, and stay home until the doctor says it is safe for you and for others for you to go out.

Covering coughs and sneezes, and not spitting is one way to help prevent the spread of pneumonia, and avoiding, careless coughers and sneezers is one way to keep from catching it yourself.

"This month is the opportune time for dairy farmers in your community to survey their herds, dairy equipment and buildings in preparation for greater milk production," said Mr. F. H. Kullman, Jr. in a recent letter to this newspaper. Mr. Kullman, vice president of Bowman Dairy Company also said, "Increased demands for milk make it imperative for all of us to extend production facilities. We recognize this sign as one of promise and security for all of us in the dairy industry. For milk delivered to Bowman receiving stations during December, Will County dairy farmers received $32,415.80." Mr. Kullman added, "This amount certainly adds to the economic welfare and stability of your neighborhood."

MARLEY
By MRS. LOREN SASS

News from Henry R. Rust, Warwick Road Congregational church Coventry, England, comes back to the States in the form of a small book he has written entitled, "Lenten Devotions for young People." Following is a copy of the Foreword of the book:

"Christianity makes a difference! It does not mean new life for us as individuals it is not really Christianity in which we believe.

"Jesus challenges us today to become the kind of people we are not. Paul believed so strongly in Jesus' way that he teaches us to be 'in Christ' for that is life indeed.

"In these daily meditations we shall think about those qualities of Christian character which change life and make a 'new person.' If we follow only our own desires and wishes we find an unsatisfying life. But the person growing into a mature Christian lives by the Spirit. 'The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, good temper, kindness, generosity, fidelity, gentleness, self-control . . . (Galatians 5:22,23 Moffatt.)

"Lent is a time for getting things straight. Lent is a time to inspect our lives: to investigate, meditate and pray. The qualities of the character Paul lists are the outward practices of a divine purpose within. Let us seek these qualities of life in Christ through him who strengthens us."

—Henry R. Rust.

SCHOOL NEWS

5th and 6th Grades

We are enjoying our picture study very much and have completed the study of Abraham Lincoln and George Washington.

Because we are proud of our school and playground we try to aid in maintaining its beauty and neatness by appointing a supervisor of the grounds each day whose duty it is to see that all paper is picked up and placed in the waste basket.

Our latest art project was work on posters. We made a February calendar silhouettes of Lincoln and Washington and Betsy Ross. Interest in our Betsy Ross posters was increased when Barbara Geuther brought her beautiful Betsy Ross doll to school.

Our Good Breakfast program was a success. Because we have been eating good, nourishing breakfasts our school received an award with a large gold star. Thank you, Mothers, without you we'd probably dash off to school some mornings without the proper breakfast. Our room contributed $10.00 to the March of Dimes.

Some of us have completed our Reading Circle book reports and are working on extra books. Our chart is a good reminder and guide of our accomplishments.

The fifth grade are making some murals for History.

We are glad to have Billy Schultz back with us. He spent several months in California. We also welcome two new 5th graders Patricia Perry and Mary Cooney who entered school this week.

Mrs. Cappel attended a conference last Friday at Aurora, Ill. This meeting was sponsored by the office of Superintendent of Public Instruction for Principals of Elementary schools of the 10 counties in this section.

Everyone enjoyed their Valentine parties.

3rd and 4th Grade News

Jean and Joan Cooney are welcome members of our school in the 3rd grade.

The recent storm wrecked some of our bird shelters which the fourth grade scientists had put up, but undiscouraged they have put them back and are trying to coax the birds to visit them.

These two grades are happy to have won the PTA dollar prize for having the most parents in attendance at the last meeting.

Save Pigs for Profit

HUNDREDS of dollars can be added to individual farmers' incomes this year and millions of pounds of meat made available for consumers if each hog producer will endeavor to improve his record of pigs saved in Spring farrowing, authorities estimate. . . . It is a matter of record that losses of baby pigs run high, in many instances as much as one-third of the litter. . . . And there is general agreement that a great part of it is a result of lack of proper attention at farrowing time.

In the Corn Belt the ten-year average number of pigs saved is slightly more than six, while the size of the litter ranges from eight to eleven pigs. . . . In recent years many producers have improved their average by using simple but efficient devices to keep pigs warm and to prevent mashing by sows. . . . Averages of ten pigs per litter saved are now quite common among those producers. . . . Compensation for the effort spent toward having as many pigs as possible started in good healthy condition was never greater than now. Meat is high and feed is plentiful. It is believed those producers who have animals ready to market early next Fall will be well rewarded.

More than 6,500,000 sows are expected to farrow this Spring in the Corn Belt alone. If two additional pigs per litter could be saved in this area it would mean a total of over 12,000,000 hogs to be added to the crop now anticipated. . . . It might also mean cashing in on a big scale at the top of the highest markets on record.

It should be remembered that a baby pig represents an investment he day it is born. Some authorities estimate it to be the equivalent of 140 pounds of feed. . . . Values are too high these days to allow the parent to become a total loss.

The Paperhangers gave a demonstration why they are dominating the league race when they overwhelmed the Oilers the first two games. George Haehnlien's 221 game and Andy's Buschel's 206 games were the big factors in the pace setter wins. But the Oilers fought back determined to stay in the race and displayed their vaunted power when Dick Muehler and Charlie Burkhardt came through with 200 games to give the Oilers the final game. Charlie Burkhardt was ready to farm some of his players out until they won the lost game, in fact he was even trying to make a deal with Elmer Cooper of the V-Eighters in trading some bowlers.

The bankers won two games from the Robins. The Robins were putting on rally after rally but it seemed that their rallies did not materialize despite the fact they were talking a good game. The Smokers climbed into third place when they swept three games from the V-Eighters. Gus Braun put in a good series to lead his team.

Next week the Smokers meet the Robins, Paperhangers tangle with the V-Eighters and the Oilers play the Bankers.

GOOD MANNERS TAUGHT IN RICHMOND SCHOOLS

This year will see a novel and vitally important subject taught in many an American school for the first time. Already, it is in use in private schools. That subject is Manners, just plain, simple good manners, says Pathfinder News Magazine.

American educators have long been aware that American youth, especially in our large cities, are becoming more and more ill mannered with each passing year. The fault, they are quick to point out, is in the lack of proper training.

In Richmond, Va., the ice is being broken in Virginia's public schools. Here and there other cities are also beginning to teach their children manners. In the capital of the Old South advantage is taken of the study room period to teach the subject. Home room teachers have discovered that most of what the students do not know about manners, they really want to know.

"I'M A CATTLE BUYER AT THE STOCK YARDS"

work for packing firms, selecting beef on the hoof in this greatest live animal market in the world. Every day, in my job, I see live stock from the western ranges and farm products from the Mississippi valley pour in here by rail and by road. That's what makes Northern Illinois the biggest center for food processing in the country. I like this job and it's to my advantage to work at the very hub of the food industry. My wife and kids enjoy living in Northern Illinois and get a lot out of its fine educational and recreational features.

his cattle buyer knows what he is talking about. He is one of a hundred thousand people employed in the food industry in Northern Illinois—where a billion dollars worth of food products are processed every year—where more fresh beef, mutton, lamb, pork, sausage and lard is produced than anywhere else in the world.

And because the Middle West is the nation's granary, Northern Illinois is also a huge grain distributing center. The Chicago Board of Trade handles 86 per cent of the entire nation's trading in wheat, corn, oats, rye, barley, and soy bean futures—the largest market of its kind in the world. With an ideal balance among industries, trades and agriculture, this area is indeed the heart of the world's richest inland empire.

For the long range future, this evenly balanced economic area provides many outstanding advantages to business and industry. The theme of this advertisement is similar to one of a series emphasizing the outstanding advantages of this area, which we are publishing in national magazines and newspapers throughout the country. As a resident of Northern Illinois, these are facts you, too, should know.

Industries locating in this area have these outstanding advantages: Railroad Center of the United States • World Airport • Inland Waterways • Geographical Center of U. S. Population • Great Financial Center • The "Great Central Market" • Food Producing and Processing Center • Leader in Iron and Steel Manufacturing • Good Labor Relations Record • 2,500,000 Kilowatts of Power • Tremendous Coal Reserves • Good Government • Good Living • Good Services for Tax Dollars. Where Cissy Spent Her Honeymoon

Most of the young newlyweds in our town spend their honeymoon at Roundstone Lake or Jackson Falls; why the Martins even went as far as New York City.

But when Cissy Copper married the young Carter boy, they allowed as how they were going to spend their honeymoon right here.

"There's no place better than our town," Cissy says. "And I'd like to start married life at home, with things Bud and I are used to."

Makes sense, come to think of it. Folks naturally left them alone; and except for occasional visits to the Garden Tavern for a glass of beer, they stayed at home, getting used to married bliss.

My missus prefers traveling—and that's her right. But from where I sit, there's no place better for a honeymoon—or second honeymoon—than right at home—with your own possessions, good home cooking, and a friendly glass of beer or two—with the best companion in the world.

es and freezes in very cold air. If the water vapor condenses but does not freeze it forms rain; if it condenses into rain and then freezes, it forms hail or sleet.

You may wonder what water vapor is. It is simply water that has changed from familiar liquid water into an invisible gas. We call this process evaporation and it takes place when ever water is exposed to dry air. Snow then, is water vapor that has frozen into ice without first forming droplets of water.

Snowflakes are found in many very beautiful patterns. Photographs of thousands of snow crystals show that almost all of them are six sided or six-pointed (hexagonal) in shape but that no two are exactly alike. Since snow crystals often grow very rapidly in the air many of them are skeleton or network crystals looking very much like fine fern leaves.

Ice is transparent and colorless but snow is white. The whiteness of snow is due to the reflection of light from the multitude of tiny points and edges of the delicate crystals.

The wind may blow a cloud of ice crystals to a colder region. Then the crystals begin to fall. As they drop they collide and grow together to form larger snowflakes. Usually the farther snowflakes fall the larger they grow.

In the United States east of the Rocky Mountains and north of the Ohio River snow falls almost every winter. In the warmer southeastern parts of the country snow that forms high in the air usually melts and falls as rain in the winter. Snow is a valuable asset to our country. It melts and sinks into the ground and this water is gradually released in the summer so that streams rising in the mountains continue to flow in dry seasons. As a result, farmers in the dry lowlands nearby use water that fell as snow the winter before to irrigate their fields. The snow blanket also protects the farmer's winter wheat and clover from alternate freezing and thawing that might kill the seeds. Melted snow furnishes moisture in the spring for sprouting seeds and growing plants.

The snow that falls in the northern United States is valuable for still other reasons. It forms a smooth surface on the ground so that lumber can be hauled out of the woods on sleds. Snow also forms a blanket that keeps the ground from freezing to great depths and keeps water pipes from breaking.

In the forests, thawed snow is absorbed by the mass of roots and decaying leaves. This forest debris acts like a great sponge and holds the water until it is needed. Lumbermen and herds of sheep have cleared the summits and sides of many mountains and removed the plants that held the snow and water on the steep slopes. Now when snow melts on these mountains the water does not soak into the ground but flows down the mountain sides, carrying soil and rocks along and cutting deep gullies. When trees and plants have been destroyed melting snow can cause wasteful erosion and destructive floods.

In polar regions and on high mountain tops there are snow fields that remain year after year. The snow falls each winter and because of the low temperatures in the summer it does not melt. The weight of one snowfall on another may cause the snow to slide down the mountain slopes, blocking the highways and railroads. Often the closely packed snow moves downward and a glacier is formed. Many of the highest mountain slopes even in the tropics are covered by mountain glaciers. The interior of Greenland is covered by a continental glacier extending over 700,000 square miles of land. The snow fields in the center of Greenland are 8,850 feet deep.

The scientist Darwin found some red snow in the Andes mountains. When the snow was crushed by horses' hoofs or was rapidly thawing it was colored red. Closer examination revealed tiny red plants in the snow. These were a species of red algae, small one celled plants. Other snow inhabiting algae

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, February 16, was:

"SOUL"

The Golden Text was:

"My soul shall be joyful in the Lord: it shall rejoice in his salvation" (Ps. 35: 9).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible:

"And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, I am the Lord your God . . . And I will set my tabernacles among you: and my soul shall not abhor you: And I will walk among you and will be your God, and ye shall be my people . . . O bless our God, ye people, and make the voice of his praise to be heard: Which holdeth our soul in life, and suffereth not our feet to be moved" (Lev. 18: 1, 2; 26: 11, 12; Ps. 66: 8, 9).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:

"God is infinite, the only Life, substance, Spirit, or Soul, the only intelligence of the universe, including man . . . Soul and Spirit being one, God and Soul are one, and this one never included in a limited mind or a limited body. Spirit is eternal, divine. Nothing but Spirit, Soul, can evolve Life, for Spirit is more than all else. Because Soul is immortal, it does not exist in mortality. Soul must be incorporeal to be Spirit, for Spirit is not finite. Only by losing the false sense of Soul can we gain the eternal unfolding of Life as immortality brought to light" (pp. 330, 335).

"I'm only a fraction!"

THIS may surprise you. But your telephone instrument is only 1/17th of the equipment needed to provide you with service!

The other 16/17ths includes wire, cable, switching equipment, trucks, buildings, tools and machines. All these things are still hard to get in the quantities we need.

That's why it takes time to complete all the service extensions and improvements we're working on, and why some people are still waiting for telephones.

Despite shortages and handicaps beyond our control, all previous records are being broken. And while there's still a big job ahead, we want you to know we're doing everything we can to give you the kind and amount of telephone service you want and need, just as fast as humanly possible.

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urinais wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at night, swelling.

SNOW-BOUND AMERICA . . . Photographs showing snow-bound Milwaukee, where all citizens turned out to clear the roads and walks. Food deliveries were blocked so citizens met on cleared streets in order to receive milk and other food. Also dazed Chicago was digging out; Betty Ford does an abrupt sidown as she skids off the curb, ruining nylons and her dignity.

FUTURE FARMERS VISIT NEW YORK CITY . . . Officers of the Future Farmers of America visited New York City recently and were shown the sights by the Boy Scouts and entertained by officials, industries, business and Secy. of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson, who is shown with the officers when he received an invitation to speak at their 1947 convention. Other view shows a New York Scout, one of their guides, pointing out lower Manhattan skyline. The boy officers later visited Chicago and other centers as a reward for their outstanding work.

QUINTS THREATENED . . . The Franco Diligenti quint of Buenos Aires have been threatened by kidnappers who demanded $12,500, Mr. and Mrs. Diligenti have reported to the police. The family was staying at the resort town of Mar Del Plata when the extortion note was received. The money was to be sent through the mail to general delivery Buenos Aires. Police and government officials have taken over the case and given the quint protection. No evidence was uncovered at post office.

THREE SAD KIDS . . . Posing these triplets was a bit of a problem until the photographer placed them in a porcelain tub. The frisky kids had places they wanted to go and being "cornered" is not to their liking. They are just one week old and are owned by John Zivic, Allison Park, Pa. Triplets in the goat family are very rare, much more so than with calves. They are all of average weight with more than the average pep and room for food.

MOST COURAGEOUS ATHLETE
. . . Monty Stratton, former Chicago White Sox pitcher, who lost a leg in a hunting accident and returned to baseball with artificial leg, has been voted most courageous athlete by Philadelphia sports writers.

VET'S DYING WISH . . . James
W. Richardson, 15, Ironton, Ohio, became a house page boy because his G.I. father's dying request was for such an appointment.
He is shown with Rep. T. A. Jenkins (Rep., Ohio), who made the appointment possible.

Combating Ants

For nests of ants in the soil in the lawn or garden, make holes about a foot apart over the infested area with a broom handle, or similar object, to a depth of two to four inches and pour into each two or three tablespoonfuls of carbon disulphide, closing the hole at the surface by pushing the soil together. In the case of large ant hills, it may be necessary to make deeper holes and pour into them a larger quantity of carbon disulphide.

Hybrid Corn

In 1945 more than 58 million acres were planted to hybrid corn varieties, according to the department of agriculture. Since 1933, when 15 per cent of the corn acreage was planted to hybrids, there has been an increase each year of from 5.7 per cent to 8.6 per cent, or close to 7 million acres. In the corn belt states, hybrids are estimated to have increased yields at least 20 per cent over the open-pollinated varieties.

"regular" without drugs

Discouraged about your constipation? Then read this sincere, unsolicited letter:

"I tried so many kinds of laxatives for constipation, but after a while they all failed to do their work. I started to eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN some time ago and was surprised to find this wonderful product helped me as many laxatives had failed to do. I eat it every day now and am happy to say I feel like a new man!" Mr. B. Lee Ward, 115 Park Avenue, Edgewood 5, R. 1.

Yes, eating ALL-BRAN regularly often brings lasting relief from constipation due to lack of bulk in the diet. For best results, eat it for breakfast every day—and drink plenty of water. Try it for ten days! If by that time you are not completely satisfied with KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, send the empty carton to the Kellogg Company, Battle Creek, Michigan, and get double your money back.

ALL-BRAN is not a purgative but a wholesome food made from the vital outer layers of whole wheat. Eat daily either as a cereal, or in muffins. Ask your grocer for KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN.

LAST LOVER

BY Helen Topping Miller

Jill McFarlane, whose father, Richard, disappeared in World War I, falls in love with Lieut. Spang Gordon. She is upset when she discovers her brother, Ric, has fallen in love with Sandra Calvert, a divorcee of questionable character. While riding with Dave Patterson, a family friend, she is thrown from her horse and taken to the hospital. That night Richard returns home. He tells her mother, Julia, that he is now Captain Mackey, stationed at the same camp as Ric. His father, John I. McFarlane, denounces him. Julia keeps the secret from Jill but tells Dave that Richard is alive. She is heartstruck at Richard's indifference toward his family the past years.

CHAPTER XII

"I know now how stiff my pride has grown. I'd made a success of living, I'd made a success of the place, I'd made a place for myself here, a place for my children. And then he made me feel myself a creature of no account. Just a woman that a man had tired of. No, I can't love him—ever. And I can't hate him either. I don't know what my feeling is—just an awful patience, I think. It's on me like a weight. I couldn't breathe, all that night. I couldn't sleep. I—thought about you, Dave."

"I'm here, Dooley," he said, quietly.

Richard McFarlane Jr. stopped briefly before a plate-glass window, set his cap at a jaunty angle, hitched his belt straight, and walked into the hotel.

The lobby was full of soldiers, the blue and silver wings of the air corps rode almost every shoulder, officers were arguing with the clerk about reservations, and a sullen sergeant, with overhanging brows and a lot of dangling bars on a medal, leaned against a pillar and flicked a contemptuous eye over mere enlisted men. Ric ignored him loftily and waited in line for the house telephone.

Three other soldiers were ahead of him, all calling girls, and Ric grew irritable and shrugged his shoulders as he inched along the line.

A student of character would have appraised him as a spoiled only son, itching under discipline but improved by it, but Ric saw himself as a man of the world, and when at last he had possession of the phone, his voice was crisp and demanding.

"Aren't you dressed yet? I thought you were going to meet me in the lobby?"

The cooing voice of the woman he was mad about came back, soothingly. "But, Ricky, darling, you're too early! You said six. I'm not dressed yet."

Ric laughed indulgently. "Haven't you got your face on yet?"

"I haven't got anything on! I'm a bathing beauty. Go away, Ricky, I'll hurry as fast as I can."

"Going to wear that yellow thing I like?"

"Darling, it's a rag! Anyway, it's at the cleaner's."

"Hurry up then, Sandra. I'm starving." Ric hung up, and a red-headed corporal snatched at the instrument instantly. Ric walked to the desk. "I telephoned for a single room," he said. "I called Thursday. The name is McFarlane. Richard McFarlane."

The clerk studied his book. "All right, Private McFarlane, we saved it for you. Best we could do. You want to go up now?"

"No, I'll have dinner first. But give me the key. How much is it? Two dollars?"

"Sorry, have to charge three for the week-end."

Ric fumbled out his bill-fold, looked to see that his pass was in place, flung down three crumpled bills. Then as he turned away he jogged the elbow of a tall officer who was waiting for his mail. "Sorry, sir," he said, curtly.

Old Cyanide! Ric gave him a straight look and wondered why this Captain Mackey was studying him so oddly. He felt his necktie and his buttons anxiously, wheeled on his heel.

Pleasant Thoughts
Of Sandra

Ric went back to a corner and slumped on a sofa. Sandra was always late, but when she did come down every bright curl would be in place and shining, her finger tips would be tinted just the right shade for her skin, her eyes would sparkle and her dress and hat be chosen with the clever perfection that pleased Ric's critical and fastidious taste.

Sandra had had a tough time, poor kid. But the little bitterness it had put into her spirit had added a tang, a zest to her personality. He had had a few anxious days after Jill's visit. Sandra had said, "Your sister doesn't like me, Ricky. She's a naive little thing, isn't she?"

Ric blamed Spang Gordon for that. Spang had been an all right guy and a good friend before he got that commission, but lately he had been too stuffed-shirt, irritating with his occasional side-warnings, his moral lectures. Spang was gone now, and Ric had evaded telling the good-bys. That a farewell would be a somewhat complicated affair, the fact that he owed Spang money, Ric put out of his mind. The score was even, if Spang had made it his business to influence Jill against Sandra. And if Jill went home and blabbed—well, that was O.K., too. He was a man now, and his affairs were his own, and he still flattered himself that he could always wind his mother around his little finger. Ric sank lower into the cushions and bolstered his self-confidence by remembering that it would be a long time before he would have to go home again, and that when the war was over he'd be some kind of hero, no matter what happened to him, and Dooley would kill the fatted calf—anyway a turkey or something.

He was not pleased when Captain Mackey took the chair next to him, pulled out a cigarette, and said casually, "Trouble you for a match, soldier?"

Ric stood up, a bored scowl on his face, and snapped his lighter. "Yes, sir. Here, sir."

"Snap out of it. That can't possibly happen!"

"Thanks. Sit down," drawled the captain, dragging on the cigarette. "What's your outfit?"

"Four hundred and eleventh, sir."

"Your name is McFarlane? What state?"

"Tennessee, sir." Ric did not sit down. He stood stiffly, itching to be gone, but the cool eyes of the older man held him.

'I Knew Your Father in France'

"How old are you, McFarlane?"

"Twenty-seven, sir."

"Like the army?"

"Naturally, sir. I enlisted."

"Father living?" The catechism went on.

"No, sir, I lost my father—in the last war."

"That so? Why don't you sit down? Waiting for somebody?"

"Yes, sir." Ric dropped back to his seat.

"Your father's name didn't happen to be Dick McFarlane, did it? I had a friend named Dick McFarlane. Met him in France, in eighteen."

"Why, yes, sir, his name was Richard. I was named after him."

"Know his regiment?" persisted Old Cyanide.

"Yes, sir. It was the 105th, machine-gun, sir."

"I fought with the 105th. Quite a coincidence, meeting you here."

"Yes, sir, it's very interesting. We never knew what happened to my father. He was killed, of course. A lot of records were lost in that war."

"I lost track of him, too," went on Captain Mackey. "Though we were pretty close at one time. Thanks for the light, McFarlane."

"You're very welcome, sir. And now if the captain will excuse me—"

"Good night, soldier."

"Good night, sir. Glad to have met you."

Sandra was waiting by the elevator when Ric hurried across the lobby. She looked displeased.

"What did he want?" she demanded.

Ric looked a trifle surprised. "Oh, just one of the old boys. He said he knew my father in France. They're always reminiscing, fighting that war over again." Ric took her arm, pressed it a little. "Where do you want to eat, sweet?"

"Not here." Sandra Calvert's brows were still tensed. "Let's go to some quiet place where there's no music and no dancing."

"How about that little place across the street? They've got booths in that back room," Ric suggested. "All I want is to be with you."

In the amethyst dimness of a shaded light, Sandra slid into a corner of the high-backed seat, and with a sigh leaned her yellow head, turbaned with a frail bit of silver gauze, against the cushions.

"What's the matter, Sandra?" Ric asked anxiously.

She shook her head, smiling wistfully. "I'm just low in my mind, Ricky. Seeing that man did it, I guess."

"Old Cyanide? Captain Mackey, I mean? He smiled at me. That's something for the book. I never saw him wear a human expression before."

"It brought so many things back," she said. "You know, he was a friend of Win's, in Hawaii."

"You knew him over there?"

"We knew all the officers, naturally. Mackey was a major then. They're both part of all that I'm trying to forget."

"I know you had a rotten time, Sandra." Ric laid his hand over hers. "But it's all behind you. This is tonight, and this is us—Sandra and Ricky. It's Sandra and Ricky from now on, so forget that guy and all that stuff you left behind in the islands."

"You're so sweet, Ricky. It's just that seeing Mackey again made me feel old! Old and bitter. And I want to be young for you, Ricky. I am young. It's just that life reached out and snatched me up so early. I was too young and silly to know what I was doing. Now I'm all battered and tarnished by life, and I want to be lovely and brand-new for you." She was almost tearful. Ric looked worried.

"Sandra, I've told you often enough that you're the loveliest thing alive! As for brand-new girls, they're a dime a dozen in this town, any town. They're all breathless, they wear those horrible saddle-shoes and sweaters, they cling, they gurgle, they make me sick! You're different. As different from those gushy things as a daiquiri is different from a strawberry soda! Stop moping! Let's have fun."

"Ricky, I can't!" She bit her lip, and a large round tear rolled over her eyelids. "I can't get rid of this horrid feeling. I feel as though something ghastly had laid a hand on my shoulder, something I can't shake off. Something that wanted to separate you and me."

"Fat chance!" Ric moved closer, put his arm around her. "Snap out of it. That can't possibly happen. Now, decide what you want to eat. I'm starved. I never saw you get hysterical before."

"I don't think it's hysteria, it hurts too much. Deep down. Like a premonition. Don't ever leave me, Ricky. I can't live without you!"

"I may have to leave, you know. I'm in the army," Ric reminded her.

"But you'll stay in my heart? You won't go away and forget me?" Her voice was a fluty sob.

"Silly girl! How about a lot of hot coffee? Get hold of yourself, Sandra. I don't know you when you're like this."

She shook the tears from her eyes, smiled faintly, and got out a mirror to repair her make-up.

"I'm so sorry, Ricky. I don't know when I've let myself go this way, before. It was thinking about Win, I guess. He hurt me so much—it does hurt to be cheated, to believe in some one and then find you've been a trusting fool."

"Forget that heel, will you?" Ric spoke more sharply than he intended, and sparks glinted for an instant in Sandra's eyes. Then his arm tightened around her, and he gave her a little shake. "I'm jealous, sweet. Didn't I tell you? When I think of that fellow making you cry, breaking your heart, I see green and it makes me nasty. Let's drop the whole thing and enjoy this Saturday night. We haven't got a lot more of them, maybe."

Ric Begins to Feel Uneasy

"What will I do when you leave me?" She nestled close under his arm, small and helpless and lovable. "Ricky, I'll die!"

"You'll die?" He grinned down at her. "I'll be in some place full of fleas and mud, eating from a tin pan, or rolled up in a wet pup tent with my feet sticking out into a cold rain, and I'll be thinking of you, curled up in a warm bed—and you'll die!"

"I'll be dreaming of you," she said, wistfully.

"About me? Or about Win Calvert?"

"That would be a nightmare. I'd wake up screaming. And then I'd have to take two aspirins and bicarbonate of soda."

They both laughed at that, and settled down to ordering their dinner. But Ric did not shake off his unease entirely. It followed him to the little hotel room, and though it was very late when he left Sandra, he could not sleep. She worried and puzzled him. She was so smooth at times, so assured, and yet underneath so young and sweet and so darned helpless! She'd had to learn that cool arrogance, of course. A beautiful woman alone in the world, quivering like a drum under the restless feet of fighting men.

Taffy or Epitaphy

On his eighty-fifth birthday famed orator Chauncey Depew was invited to a gala dinner. All the notables present took turns in making highly complimentary speeches about the guest of honor. Finally there were cries of "Speech! Speech!"

"You have no idea how good it is to hear words of praise while I'm still alive," said Depew. "I'd much rather have the taffy than the epitaphy."

BUSBE PROMOTED TO TWO IMPORTANT COMMITTEES

Fred E. Busbey, Congressman of the 3rd District, Illinois, has been appointed to two of the most important Committees of the 80th Congress under the law which provided for reorganization of the Legislative branch of our government adopted by the present Congress on January 4th. He will serve as a member of the Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments, and the Committee on House Administration.

The committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments is destined to be the all important investigating body of the House of Representatives, as evidenced by the fact that 6 of the 8 Republican members of the Rules Committee, long recognized as the most powerful group in the House, have been assigned to this Committee.

One of the first matters of major importance this Committee will have to consider is the entire subject of merging the War and Navy Departments.

The Expenditures Committee is among other things authorized to study the operation of government activities at all levels with a view to determining their economy and efficiency.

A new function assigned this Committee is to study the machinery of American Government with a view to its readjustment to fit the changing requirements of the postwar world.

This is one of the most important standing committees of the House of Representatives. It is the result of a merger of six separate standing committees which were consolidated by the Reorganization Act. These six constituent committees were: Accounts, Disposition of Executive Papers, Enrolled Bills, Library, Memorials and Printing.

The new Committee on House Administration has been assigned the former functions and responsibilities of the old committees absorbed by it. It handles all legislation relating to, and exercises general supervision over, the following subjects, and agencies:

1. Expenditures of the contingent fund of the House.
2. House Accounts.
3. The House Office Buildings, House Wing of the Capitol and House restaurants.
4. Disposition of executive papers, including the National Archives.
5. Enrollment of bills.
6. Management of the Library of Congress, the House Library, the Smithsonian Institution, and the Botanic Gardens.
7. Printing of Congressional Record and other House publications.

ILL. BELL TELEPHONE ANNUAL REPORT SHOWS EARNINGS BELOW DEPRESSION YEARS

Earnings of the Illinois Bell Telephone Company for 1946 were substantially below the worst depression year, according to the company's 1946 Annual Report which has just been issued.

Despite a record volume of business last year, the company's expenses rose more rapidly than revenues. The report shows increases over 1945 of 30 percent for operating expenses while revenues rose only 13 percent.

Operating expenses other than taxes amounted to $132,983,000 an increase of $30,421,000 over 1945. Four-fifths of this increase occurred in wages. Operating taxes for 1946 amounted to $13,422,000 after taking into consideration a refund for $4,005,000 arising from the so-called "tax carry back of excess profits credit", which will not be available after 1946 under present tax laws.

Net income in 1946 available for fixed charges and dividends was $10,801,000 or $960,000 less than in 1945. Without benefit of the tax refund, the 1946 income available for dividends was $3.10 per share of capital stock outstanding. With the tax refund, applicable for the last time in 1946, income available for dividends was equivalent to $5.56 per share. This compares with $6.39 in 1945 and the average for the previous 10 years of $7.83 per share. Dividends of $6.00 per share were paid during the year, requiring a charge of $694,000 to surplus.

Wages were 72 percent of the company's total operating expenses in 1946 and took 60 cents out of every dollar received for telephone service.

"During the next several years the company will have to raise approximately $60,000,000 annually of new capital, to enable it to construct the buildings and provide the equipment to meet the public's needs", the report said. "The additional money needed will be forthcoming only if investors believe that telephone securities offer the prospect of a steady, adequate return," the report emphasized.
